MISS RANKIN FACES CONSTITUTION'S 'HE'

Some Persons Think Masculine Pronoun May Unseat First Congresswoman.

"No Person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the Age who shall not have attained to the seven of twenty-five Years, and been seven Years a Citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that State in which he shall be chosen."

ton last night.

Constitutional lawyers, however, last night gave little encouragement to the idea that Miss Rankin might not be allowed to take her seat in the House of Representatives just because the Constitution alludes to members as "he," and failed to say "he or she." They pointed out that the only reason the framers of the Constitution did not word the paragraph quoted with the phrase "he or she" was because at that time no person ever contemplated the possibility of a woman being a member of Congress. They also pointed out that in every legal document, under the decisions of the courts, when the word "he" is used the word "she" is read into it whenever necessary—in other words, that the law makes no distinction between "he" and "she."

Constitution Wholly Masculine.

if they did not keep Miss Kankin from her seat.

These old-fashioned persons took the trouble to dig up another paragraph in the Constitution, with another "he" in it, as indicative, they said, of the general idea that the Constitution does not allow any but a "he" to be a senator or a representative. This paragraph is as follows:

"No Senator or Representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any Civil office under the Authority of the United States, which shall have been encreased during such time; and no Person holding any office under the for empty passenger equipment, cipher-

"He" and "His." Not "She" and Her"

That paragraph, it was pointed out, not only has a "he" in it, but has a available to both. This" in it, too, under which, with a little imagination, it might seem to be made to "go double," especially as it has not a single "she" or "her" in it. Also, these old-fashioned persons around the hotel and club lobbies tried to prove that there is a rule of the House of Representatives which forbids the presence of a woman on the floor of the House, asserting that the rules of the House would have to be floor of the House, asserting that the rules of the House would have to be altered before Miss Rankin could take her seat; but a reference to the rule book shows no such thing, although Miss Rankin will have one certain difficulty before her, and that is, under the rules, her private secretary will not be allowed the privilege of the floor unless said private secretary is also a clerk to a committee.

It was recalled, in this connection last night, that the question of sex has never entered into the appointment of postmasters, many of whom, in important offices, have been women, and that all the bonds of the postmasters are phrased with the word "he" in them. Veteran newspaper men last night said that if Miss Rankin comes to Washington with the certificate of election from her state there is very little doubt that she will be seated, and that the question of her sex will play no part.
